

You Should Know

The redneck is known by many and understood by few. I would like to explain to you what the redneck would seem most likely to be like in one person. We will name this redneck Luke because this seems to be a very solid country name. Luke's job would most likely be something in the field of manual labor something along the lines of a construction worker or maybe even a mechanic.

Luke would drive either a lifted older Chevy, Dodge or possibly Ford truck but would probably only like two out of the three domestic trucks. He would also work on the truck himself and be able to replace everything from the oil to even rebuild the engine. He would also always have plans for the truck whether it be bigger axles, bigger engine, bigger lift, or bigger tires. On the other hand he would also want to replace everything so that he would have enough power and strength to get through the mud bogs. Luke's dream truck would be his truck lifted 8 to 12 inches with one ton axles and big block engine.

Luke's favorite thing to do on the weekends is to drink beer with his other redneck friends, going mudding, going to woodsies (parties in the mountains), while also spending time with his girlfriend. Luke would also have a girlfriend that likes to go mudding and go to woodsies. Lastly Luke would be willing to do anything for another person no matter how far in the hills it was or if he didn't like them if they need help he is willing to help. Luke is the ultimate American!
